INTERESTING EUROPEAN NEWS. Great Britain.

The following news is brought by the Europa, which left Liverpool on the 19th of October: The Paris correspondent of the London Times writes that the discussion as to the common line of policy to be adopted by France and England on the American question has been again renewed. The subject has been mooted before but was again postponed. Probably information brought over by

Dr. Russell's last letter to the Times is dated Washington, October 2th. In it he alludes to the great expedition to sail at the end of October, and the work of the first cault, Planchs, Wallace, &c. Mr. Vanderhoof has died, universally respected, in his seventy-second the United States, and it was the judgment of Mr. Page, the chief mate, and the owners, when first port; and it does not believe in the oaths of the Southerners, that they will never give a bale of cotton to the Yankees, but thinks that the temptaand the strong protectionists will scarcely fail to put on the screws with foreign customers. The writer thinks that for the present the large ports

The Supply and Consumption of Cotton. The total computed stock of cotton at Liverpool on October 14th was 711,960 bales; at the corresponding period of last year it was 831 190. The total falling off in the stock of American cotton is far more decided, the total of that growth now held not being much more than 400,000 bales. The late extensive introduction of the speculative element into the cotton trade is the strongest feature of all, as marking its increasing disorganization. The shipping of cotton from Liverpool to the United States has now assumed considerable dimensions; the exportations during September amounted to 3,703 bales, all of which, except 321 bales, being American produce. It is supposed, however, that the manufacturers have a much larger stock on hand then they usually have. For the last three months they have taken cotton at the rate of 52,700 bales per week; during the first six months of this year they took at the rate of 43,744 bales weekly; and as the average weekly delivery of 1860 was 48. 607 bales, it is supposed that they can keep out of the market for a consideral time. Short time also occa-sions a weekly reduction of 16,000 bales, and this reduction will rapidly increase. This will also bring organize General Fremont's military department about another result, for the diminution of pro which will involve the necessity of transferring duction will cause the stock on hand to rise in that officer to some other field of duty. The dispatches published yesterday morning tak-en in conjunction with private advices from Washington, justified the conclusion that General Freont had finally been removed. This morning the news is equally satisfactory that he has not been removed. So we vibrate at the merey of the ma metic wires. No official notice of removal has been received at headquarters in this city. In addition, our regular telegrams, published in this issue, pronounce, on the authority of the correspondent of the New York Herald, (dubious source, to be sure.) that the story of General Fremont's removal is a conerd; and that though the matter had received its final discussion in the Cabinet, the whole question had been referred to the decission of President Lincoln. If this be true, the loyal people of the country, all of whom have confidence in the patriotism and integrity of the Chief Magiatrate of the nation, will be satisfied, only let the decision be made at once. Either con-firm General Fremout in his commad or remove him. His best friends prefer his removal to this dilly dallying persecution that has hampered his operations so long. The best friends of the Administration are also sick of the shuffling hesitancy which has characterized its treatment of this important case.

Thus ends the trial of the first batch of pirates, and the whole proceedings have been character ized with great dignity on the part of all concerned in the proceedings. The counsel, both for the Govrnment and the prisoners, have acted with calmness throughout, notwithstanding the supposed excitement in the public mind, and the prisoners can safely say they have had a fair trial. The trial of the Petrel pirates will be commenced on Monday next.
